Project 4: Big Bend-Rio Grande Collaboration for Transboundary Landscape Conservation

Our organization, The Nature Conservancy, has been developed several projects on invasive species in the region and hopefully we can participate in this project. I want to suggest that climate change scenarios are used for modeling the dynamics of the invasive species that are already in the region or that are arriving in the following years (e.g. Cactoblastis cactorum). Control options should be developed soon for facing the Cactus moth.
