

Secretariat of the Commission for Environmental Cooperation

REQUEST FOR INFORMATION For Preparation of a Factual Record Submission SEM 97-006 (Oldman River II) January 2002

I. The factual record process

The Commission for Environmental Cooperation (CEC) of North America is an international organization created under the North American Agreement on Environmental Cooperation (the NAAEC) by Canada, Mexico and the United States (together, the Parties). The CEC operates through three organs: a Council, made up of a top-level environmental official from each of the Parties; a Joint Public Advisory Committee (JPAC), comprised of five citizens from each country; and a Secretariat located in Montreal.

Article 14 of the NAAEC allows any non-governmental organization or person in North America to file a submission with the Secretariat asserting that a Party to the NAAEC is failing to effectively enforce its environmental law. This initiates a process of review of the submission that can result in the Council instructing the Secretariat to prepare a factual record in connection with the submission. A factual record seeks to provide detailed information to allow interested persons to assess whether a Party has effectively enforced its environmental law with respect to the matter raised in the submission.

Under Articles 15(4) and 21(1)(a) of the NAAEC, in developing a factual record, the Secretariat shall consider any information furnished by a Party and may ask a Party to provide information. The Secretariat also may consider any relevant technical, scientific or other information that is publicly available; submitted by the JPAC or by interested non-governmental organizations or persons; or developed by the Secretariat or independent experts.

On 16 November 2001, the Council issued Council Resolution 01-08, unanimously instructing the Secretariat to develop a factual record, in accordance with Article 15 of the NAAEC and the Guidelines for Submissions on Enforcement Matters under Articles 14 and 15 of the NAAEC (Guidelines), "on whether Canada, in the Sunpine Forest Products Access Road case, is failing to effectively enforce sections 35, 37 and 40 of the Fisheries Act, section 5(1)(d) of CEAA and Schedule 1 Part 1 Item 6 of the Law List Regulations made pursuant to paragraphs 59(f) and (g) of CEAA." The Council directed the Secretariat, in developing the factual record, to consider whether the Party concerned "is failing to effectively enforce its environmental law" since the entry into force of the NAAEC on 1 January 1994. In considering such an alleged failure to effectively enforce, relevant facts that existed prior to 1 January 1994, may be included in the factual record.

The Secretariat is now requesting information relevant to matters to be addressed in the factual record for the Oldman River II submission, SEM-97-006. The following sections provide background on the submission and describe the kind of information requested.

II. The Oldman River II submission

On 4 October 1997, The Friends of the Oldman River (Submitters) filed a submission with the CEC asserting that the “Government of Canada is failing to apply, comply with and enforce sections 35, 37 and 40 of the Fisheries Act, section 5(1)(d) of CEAA and Schedule 1 Part 1 Item 6 of the Law List Regulations made pursuant to paragraphs 59(f) and (g) of CEAA.”<sup>1</sup> They assert that in practice, almost no section 37(2) orders are issued and the number of section 35(2) authorizations varies widely from province to province and has decreased significantly in recent years. They assert that the Directive on the Issuance of Subsection 35(2) Authorizations (Directive), which provides for the issuance of letters of advice in certain cases, invents a decision-making process which frustrates the intention of Parliament and usurps the role of CEAA as a planning and decision-making tool and as a mechanism for public participation. The Submitters also assert that there are very few prosecutions for violations of the habitat protection provisions of the Fisheries Act and they claim that Canada has abdicated its legal responsibilities to the provinces, which, they claim, have not done a good job of securing compliance with or enforcing the Fisheries Act.

The Submitters refer to the Sunpine Forest Products Access Road case (Sunpine Project) as an example of Canada’s alleged failure to enforce the Fisheries Act and CEAA. The Sunpine Project involved the construction, by Sunpine Forest Products Ltd. (Sunpine), of a 40 kilometer road to access forest areas on the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains, west of the town of Rocky Mountain House in Alberta.

The Submitters assert that they repeatedly urged Canada to initiate an environmental assessment of the Sunpine Project under CEAA on the basis that the Project triggered CEAA twice: first, it would result in the harmful alteration, disruption or destruction of fish habitat, thus requiring an authorization pursuant to section 35(2) of the Fisheries Act; and second, Canada had requested information from Sunpine and was evaluating it as provided by section 37(2) of the Fisheries Act. The Submitters assert that at the time of filing the submission, they had not received a response from Canada regarding whether an environmental assessment would be triggered by the Sunpine Project.

In its response dated 13 July 1998, Canada contends that sections 35(2) and 37 of the Fisheries Act are not invoked if there is no harmful alteration, disruption or destruction of fish habitat. With regard to the Sunpine Project, Canada asserts that the Department of Fisheries and Oceans (DFO) became aware of the Project and that it included 21 river crossings. DFO concluded that 8 such crossings had potential implications for fish habitat and subsequently concluded that 6 of these had no potential to damage fish habitat if constructed as proposed by Sunpine. For the remaining 2 crossings, DFO wrote letters of advice.
